1.Applicants' amendment filed July 30, 2004 is taken by the examiner as an election of Group I without traverse.

2.The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3.Claims 1, 2 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mead (4,675,061). Mead discloses or suggests the basic claimed method of making a mold from shape memory materials for manufacturing composite parts with resins which are solidified within the mold by application of a curing temperature (column 1, lines 28-32) including (1) providing the shape memory material with a critical transition temperature (column 2, lines 39-43) which, it is submitted, exceeds the curing temperature, (2) processing the shape memory material into a memorized shape, and (3) deforming the shape memory material from the memorized shape into a desired mold shape (this is described by Mead at column 2, lines 48-64 as dimensionally initializing a core material). The examiner takes Official Notice that it is known to produce composite parts which are of a castable form.

Mead teaches the use of a shape memory alloy, as in claim 2, and the use of pressure (column 2, line 55) to deform the shape memory material, as in claim 9. The examiner takes Official Notice that it is known to use a vacuum to reshape a preformed material

4. Claims 3-8, 10-13 and 23-26 and 40-43 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mead as applied to claims 1, 2 and 9 above, and further in view of Kawai et al. (4,950,258). Kawai et al., at column 1, lines 14-40, note the interchangeable nature of metallic alloys and polymeric materials (SMP) having shape memory properties. Given this teaching, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute the use of polymeric material for metallic material in the process of Mead since both materials possess effective shape memory properties. With regard to claim 40, it is submitted that dies 24 and 26 (figure 4) in Mead represent a castable composite part since it is known to cast mold members. Concerning claim 23, Mead illustrates the use of a hollow, film-like structure and the form or mold has an upper and lower surface and the film conforms to the surface. Kawai et al. teach the use of norbornene based material, as in claims 25 and 42, and Mead suggests the steps of claims 24 and 41. The examiner takes Official Notice that the processing steps of claims 4-8 and 10-12 are known processes in shaping and reshaping polymeric or metallic performs. Mead forms a mechanical part, as in claim 43, such as a part used on an airliner.

5. Claim 14 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
